DEAN SPANLEY

AS PART OF THE BEALTAINÉ FESTIVAL

Bealtaine Festival is the Irish National Arts Festival Celebrating Creativity in Older Age

This is a charming and eccentric comedy for the older generation.

Based on a little-known 1936 novella by the Irish author Baron Dunsany, Dean Spanley stars Jeremy Northam as Fisk, an Edwardian publisher who is exasperated by his cantankerous father, played by Peter O'Toole: a dotty yet powerful performance. Fisk's older brother was killed in the Boer war and his mother died of a broken heart soon after, but Fisk Sr refuses to grieve.

His son makes the acquaintance of Dean Spanley (Sam Neill), a peppery and somewhat Trollopian churchman, and he is astonished to discover that the dean is the reincarnation of a bizarre departed soul – a soul who may, by declaring himself, allow dad to rediscover his emotions. It is odd, yet amusing, and O'Toole and Neill both give very nice performances. – Peter Bradshaw, The Guardian

“What an eccentric, absorbing and rewarding film this is... Delightful” – David Cheal, The Telegraph
